TAKING A STEP BACK FROM WEED? HERE'S HOW TO STAY BUSY IN EVANSTON

CLEAR 30

When you take a step back from weed, it can feel like there's suddenly a lot of extra time in your day—and not always enough ideas to fill it. That's where distractions come in. Finding things that feel good, keep you busy, and help you focus on something new can make all the difference.

We've put together a list of some of our favorite things to do in Evanston and on campus to help you stay on track during your break. Whether you're in the mood for fresh air, a creative project, or just something fun, there's plenty here to keep you moving forward.

Nature & Outdoors

Ladd Arboretum

Shaded trails and native plants - unwind among the greenery without leaving the city limits.

Perkins Woods

Tiny wooded hideaway for a quiet break or a brisk walk - nature at its most peaceful.

Leahy Park

Green space meets playground fun - ideal for tossing a frisbee or kicking back with friends.

Arts & Creativity

Open Studio Project:

Roll up your sleeves for hands-on art sessions - no rules, just raw inspiration.

Noyes Cultural Arts Center

Artist studios and intimate performances - feel the creative buzz in every hallway.

1100 Florence Gallery

Quirky local art exhibits and pop-up shows - discover Evanston's hidden creative talent.

WHY DISTRACTIONS MATTER

Let's be real: staying busy is one of the best ways to make a break from weed easier. New experiences and hobbies give you something else to focus on, and before you know it, the time flies by. Think of it as an opportunity to explore, grow, and maybe even find a new favorite thing while you're on your break.
